WASHINGTON (P)-A new "dollar crisis" conference between Britain and the United States appears to be shaping up for early

Prime Minister Churchill himself may fly to the United States then to talk with the next American president about Britain's ideas for new moves to strengthen the Western world's finances.

Nothing definite about the dates for any such-high level meeting has been decided upon. But American and British financial and trade experts are already busy behind the scenes exploring possible proposals for action.

The present plan calls for government agencies to draft a comprehensive report summing up the West's economic problems. This is to be laid on the desk of the new president after he assumes office Jan. 20 along with alternative proposals for United States action to meet the situation.

Officials here believe it likely that Churchill will want to discuss these problems personally with the next president. If he doesn't come himself, it is believed virtually certain he will send Foreign Minister Anthony Eden and Britain's chancellor of the exchequer, R. A. Butler, to talk with the next American secretaries of state and treasury.

President Truman, questioned about this at his news conference yesterday, said any such discussion would necessarily be with the new administration and that he knew nothing about it.

The backstage study now going on in American government agencies seems to stem from a growing belief that America's allies may have to halt their rearmament drive unless new financial props are found for their shaky

HOW LABOR VOTED IN 1948

Starting with the New Deal in 1932, the Democratic Party has generally allied itself with industrial unionism, and labor in a reciprocal mood has tended to cast its lot with the Democrats. Newschart shows how organized and unorganized labor voted in the 1948 election. Nearly three-quarters of all unionized workers voted Democratic, but the Democratic-Republican split of nonunion workers was more nearly equal. Data compiled by the Bureau of Census.

CALIFORNIA, MISSOURI FARMER - E. M. Burger, grows corn and cures country hams on his farm near California. Burger and his son had the reserve champion country ham at corn terunzea to soil test recommendations. They are entered in the statewide MFA Corn Yield Contest and have a stalk population of between 18,000 and 20,000 per acre. "We are more interested in having a lot of ears than we are in having a few big ears." Burger said when discussing his ideas on how to crib the most corn from an acre of ground. Burger applied 40.6 nitrogen solution at the rate of 100 pounds of nitrogen per acre. He plawed down 100 pounds of 0-48-0 per acre and used 200 pounds of 4-24-12 as a starter. This is the second year this land has been in corn. Last year Burger grew 30 acres of MFA White corn which graded number one in Kansas City and brought within one cent of the top price ever paid for corn in Kansas City at that time. The 30 acres averaged more than 124 bushels per acre.
